The Grateful Heart: Gratitude as a Spiritual Path*

"If the only prayer you say is Thank You, that would be enough!" (Meister Eckhart)

"Mysticism is felt-gratitude for everything." (Anthony deMello, S.J.)

The Grateful Leper (Lk 17: 11-19)

“We cannot be grateful for everything; but we can in every situation be grateful for something.” (Br. David Steindl-Rast)

Fostering Grateful Living

Gratitude is the natural response to the gratuity of everything.

The British writer G.K. Chesterton extends the practice of “saying grace” to include many events of his day: “You say grace before meals. All right. But I say grace before the concert and the opera, and grace before the play and pantomime, and grace before I open a book, and grace before sketching, painting, swimming, fencing, boxing, walking, playing, dancing and grace before I dip the pen in the ink.”
Deepening Appreciation

Fostering appreciation begins with seeing commonly taken-for-granted things with fresh eyes, as Patricia Schneider’s poem, “The Patience of Ordinary Things” delightfully illustrates:

It is a kind of love, is it not?
How the cup holds the tea,
How the chair stands sturdy and foursquare,
How the floor receives the bottoms of shoes or toes.
How soles of feet know where they’re supposed to be.
I’ve been thinking about the patience of ordinary things,
How clothes wait respectfully in closets
And soap dries quietly in the dish,
And towels drink the wet from the skin of the back.
And the lovely repetition of stairs.
And what is more generous than a window? (p. 153)

Rekindling Wonder

Alexis Zorba’s stance of amazement before daily realities, hardly noticed by most people, impressed the narrator of the novel:

I felt, as I listened to Zorba, that the world was recovering its pristine freshness. All the dulled daily things regained the brightness they had in the beginning, when we came out of the hands of God. Water, women, the stars, bread, returned to their mysterious, primitive origin and the divine
